This is a visually intriguing technique that is pretty easy to do ….here is a video link that shows how to do it….it is in German but you can still get the process without the audio
https://youtu.be/euQa5OuGPG0

1. Select a photo with strong vertical lines and a point of interest
2. Duplicate the layer
3. On the duplicate layer, choose Motion Blur filter and set the angle to vertical (-90)
4. Apply a mask to that layer
5. Paint black on the mask to reveal the original layer underneath without the blur for the foreground or point of interest (the orange leaf)
6. Make any final tweeks in Camera Raw and save

Lets see what you can come up with….have fun!
